This is the 20th year that the Maryland List Report has been compiled and published. The list was begun in 1986 by Harvey Mudd, was taken on by Phil Davis in the early 1990s, and then was passed on to Norm Saunders with the 2001 List Report. We sincerely hope that the list is taken in the vein in which it is meant--a way to have fun with our listing mania. If some have stopped reporting their lists because they feel the competition has become too intense, please understand that this is for fun and that we would love to see you return. We're headed for a generational switch and we hope that all of you, young and not so young, hang in there and watch the evolving skills of so many fine young birders here in Maryland.

The 2005 List Report

When I started compiling the list data for 2005 I had the sense that the year hadn't been nearly as exciting as 2004. I've been forced to rethink that notion, however, as I scanned through the lists of species added to the various Maryland life lists. The year began, of course, with that wonderful Northern Lapwing in Frederick County that so many observers were able to see over the latter half of February. A few lucky Virginia birders, wending their way to the lapwing site, stumbled on another Eurasian Collared-Dove, the 4th reported in Maryland. Everything got pretty quiet at that point until the MOS Conference in late May, when the singing Swainson's Warbler discovered in Calvert County pleased many of the conference attendees. Things again quieted until Dave Czaplak's electrifying news on August 12 of a Neotropic Cormorant on the Potomac River! This was followed in short order by a Swainson's Hawk reported by Jim Stasz from Saint Mary's County on September 25, a Curlew Sandpiper discovered by Mark Hoffman at West Ocean City Pond on October 9, the Gray Kingbird discovered by the Brodericks in southern Worcester County on October 19, and the Hammond's Flycatcher identified by Hank Kaestner on November 24 in Baltimore County. Dave Powell reported seeing a California Gull in 2005, but I'm not sure where or when this took place. The lapwing, cormorant, and Hammond's Flycatcher will all be additions to the Maryland list if they are accepted by the MD/DC Records Committee. All in all, a pretty darned good year!

Jim Stasz, of Calvert County, maintains his hold on the top spot on the Maryland Life List, with 390 species. Will Jim be the first birder to tally 400 species in Maryland? Stay tuned! Paul O'Brien, from Montgomery County, remains in second place with 389 species and Mark Hoffman of Carroll County slipped to third with 388. Virginian Paul Pisano is in 4th place with a way-back count of "only" 378 species. Fully seven birders tallied 300 or more species in 2005, with top honors going this year to Hans Holbrook, the brash young man from Howard County, who tracked down 312 species. He was closely followed by Jim Stasz with 310, Bill Hubick (Baltimore County) and Jim Brighton (Talbot County) with 307, Matt Hafner (Harford County) and Kevin Graff (Baltimore) with 301, and our newlywed Stan Arnold (Anne Arundel County), with 300 species. Of those who have reported their list totals at least once over the past five years, 78 are now in the coveted "300 Club", up from 76 last year. The All-Time 300 Club, those who have ever reported a total seen in Maryland over 300, now includes 102 of Maryland's present and past top birders. Those adding the most new species to their MD life list this year include John Hubbell of DC, who saw 16 new species, Kevin Graff, who is claiming 14 new birds, and Barbara Gearhart of Frederick County, with 12 new species.

In the District of Columbia, Rob Hilton is still number 1, with 265 species, followed by Ottavio Janni (no longer living in the U.S.) with 262 species and Paul Pisano with 259. Paul led the 2005 tally with 186 species, followed by Mike Bowen's 154 and John Beetham's 143 species. Otherwise, no changes have occurred in the relative rankings of the top ten birders except that Mike Bowen of Montgomery County has moved up from 9th to 8th position by adding 4 new species in 2005.

The Maryland Yard List tally is led by Henry Armistead (a Philadelphian but a frequent vacationer in Talbot County) with his Talbot County farm total of 266 species, well ahead of the second place 218 species yard list amassed by former Marylander John Gregoire, in Prince George's County. Jim Stasz is coming on strong in third place with 216 species seen from his Calvert County bayside villa. First in the work/other yard list category is once again Dave Webb (Harford County) with the 224 species he has recorded at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, followed by Peter Osenton (Anne Arundel County) with 210 species tallied at Patuxent Wildlife Research Center. For 2005, the highest list is the 168 species reported by Jeff Shenot of Prince George's County, followed closely by Henry Armistead with 160 species and Rod Burley of Prince George's County with 139 species.

The District of Columbia Yard List is led by Ottavio Janni with 114 species, followed by Byron Swift with 112. In the DC work/other category, Norm Saunders of Montgomery County has tallied 89 species while wandering the parks around the U.S. Capitol Building.

The Maryland Total Tick List is slowly growing in popularity as 28 folks are now reporting the sum of their MD county lists, four more than in 2004. The idea is to be able to demonstrate one's breadth of birding experiences in Maryland by attaining a sum of their county lists of at least 2,300 species, an average of at least 100 species per county. Jim Stasz is the first Maryland birder to break the 6,000 species mark, for an average count of 262 species per county. Jim is followed by Bob Ringler (Carroll County), Marshall Iliff (California), Harvey Mudd (Montgomery County), and Matt Hafner as the remaining four birders also averaging over 200 species per county. For 2005 alone, top honors go to hard-driving Hans Holbrook, with 3,244 species, to Stan Arnold, with 3,185, and to Jim Brighton, with 3,126.

Popularized by Jim Stasz, the All-County Closeout List has also been gaining in popularity as a way to measure your "MD Manic Index." Jim leads the category, of course, with 171 of a possible 234 species of birds seen in all 23 counties. In second place is Bob Ringler, with 125 species, followed by Marshall Iliff, with 118, and Dave Perry (Anne Arundel County) with 102 species. In 2005, Stan Arnold made the most closeouts for the year with 39—what a unique honeymoon! He and Elaine were followed by Bill Hubick with 29 closeouts and by Jim Brighton with 24.

Rounding up the statewide lists is Species Photographed in Maryland, with Jim Stasz in the lead with 360, followed by George Jett with 340. It seems to me that Mark Hoffman should be pretty high up on this list as well but Amy tells me that he keeps losing count. In a well-deserved 3rd place is Arlene Ripley of Calvert County with 244 species photographed followed by Paul Nistico of Charles County, with 229 species. On a much sadder note, we don't know how many photographs Gary Smyle of Frederick County added to the 158 he reported in 2004. Gary passed away quite suddenly early in 2006 before he had an opportunity to send in his lists but not before he spent almost an entire week doing what he loved best—watching and photographing the first-state-record Townsend's Warbler in Frederick County and helping many visiting birders to also find and enjoy the bird. Gary, we'll sorely miss you.

Following are personal notes, highlights, and observations from 2005, more or less alphabetically presented.

Harry Armistead saw his 300th species in Dorchester County, a long-awaited feat.

Jim Brighton tells us with some glee that he broke 200 species in Caroline County (no mean feat) and added 811 new county ticks in 2005.

Walter Ellison notes that he now has 223 year-round species in his Atlas Block (Hanesville SE).

Matt Hafner's 2005 highlights include pulling even with Jim Stasz in Harford County (coming up with 7 new county species to do that) and staying 1 species ahead of Hans Holbrook for his MD Life List.

In a neat tour de force, Rob Hilton picked up Wild Turkey and Lapland Longspur in the District of Columbia.

Aside from pulling one species closer to Matt Hafner, Hans Holbrook's high point for 2005 was his April decision not to try for another big year.

John Hubbell insists that he now lives in DC, not Montgomery County.

George Jett's high point of 2005 was birding with Jim Stasz and Ed Boyd. George notes that at one point Ed identified a 12-point buck as a Grasshopper Sparrow.

Hank Kaestner met more new birders in Baltimore County this past fall than he ever knew existed in the state!

Ellen Lawler added a Black-billed Cuckoo to her Salisbury yard list.

Joel Martin reports that his highlights for 2005 included Mike Burchett, Jim Stasz, and a Roseate Tern, not necessarily in that order.

Paul Nistico retired and moved to Florida in 2005.

Peter Osenton added four species to his MD yard list in 2005 but he hasn't told us anything lately about that one tree in his yard that he's been keeping a list for.

Danny Poet's highlight was the Snowy Owl he discovered in a tiny corner of Queen Anne's County in the Lower Kent County CBC circle.

Norm Saunders gritted his teeth and managed to stick to his pledge to say nothing mean, nasty, or insulting about Jim Stasz in the 2005 list report writeup.

Don Simonson pulled off an enviable hat-trick, adding Long-eared Owl, Merlin, and Pine Siskin to his Montgomery County yard list.

Jo Solem reports that 'selasphorus sp.' can now be officially upgraded to Rufous Hummingbird on the Howard County Bird List since David Holmes captured and banded said species in December of 2005.

Jim Stasz quietly slid past 300 species in his home county in 2005 and also surpassed 6,000 for his Maryland Total Tick.

Marcia Watson-Whitmyre has officially changed her name to Marcia Watson. She has also expressed her amazement at the impact personal relationships can have on one's county lists (she saw a lot of birds in Baltimore County in the second half of 2005...grin).

Finally, Gwen Brewer reports that "some guy with a camera" keeps following her around.

I'm leaving the top county listers for you to discover on your own. Browse the county lists of listers to your heart's content.

This closes the books on 2005. Thanks to all of you who shared your list totals and your experiences. Here's to a safe and birdy 2006 for all!
